Chesapeake Bay National Park is good idea

COUNTY EXECUTIVE O. James Lighthizer has been sounding around with an idea that should be tried.

The idea is for a Chesapeake Bay National Park that would encompass all parts of the Bay and its tributaries. As a consequence of this and other proposals, the idea has been made for some time. It is good to have it taken seriously. And it is good to be heard.

When the county adds to the wildlife refuge, the Smithfield hunt, and the land owned by the Navy, Army and Air Force in the various states and counties in the Chesapeake Bay region, it is a good time to begin thinking about what the idea means.

We think that the idea of a Chesapeake Bay National Park is an excellent idea. It would be a good idea for the whole country.

We have been thinking about the idea for some time. It is a good idea for the whole country. It is good for the whole country. It is good for the whole country. It is good for the whole country. It is good for the whole country.

And I have been wondering whether the government is doing enough to protect the environment. And I have been wondering whether the government is doing enough to protect the environment. And I have been wondering whether the government is doing enough to protect the environment.

John G. Reynolds, Jr., of the Environmental Protection Agency, told us that the new plan is a major step forward.

We simply cannot afford to ignore the fact that the government is in serious trouble. And I have been wondering whether the government is doing enough to protect the environment. And I have been wondering whether the government is doing enough to protect the environment. And I have been wondering whether the government is doing enough to protect the environment. And I have been wondering whether the government is doing enough to protect the environment.
